CONCEPTS OF PROPERTY IN INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY LAW

Intellectual property law faces the challenge of balancing the interests of rights holders and users in the face of technological change and inequalities in information access. Concepts of Property in Intellectual Property Law offers a collection of essays reflecting on the interaction between intellectual property and broader, more traditional notions of property. It explores the way in which differing interpretations of the concept of property can affect the scope of protection in the laws of copyright, patent, trade marks and confidential information. With contributions from leading and emerging scholars from a variety of jurisdictions, the book demonstrates how concepts of property can assist in shaping a conceptually coherent and balanced response to the challenges faced by intellectual property law.

HELENA R. HOWE is a Lecturer in Law at the University of Sussex.

JONATHAN GRIFFITHS is a Reader in Intellectual Property Law at Queen Mary, University of London.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We would like to thank Bea Myers, Ph.D. candidate at Sussex University, for her editorial assistance. We would also like to thank Kim Hughes and all at Cambridge University Press for their help in the production of the book. Thanks also go to Helena's academic and administrative colleagues at Sussex. Particular thanks are due to Amanda Sims and Lynn Gibbs for their help in organising the workshop for the contributors to the collection held at the university in August 2011. Finally, thank you to Ilanah Simon Fhima, Senior Lecturer in Law at UCL, for first providing the idea for the collection.
