

Contents

Preface to this edition by HANS-JOHANN GLOCK	page ix
Preface	xi
Translator's preface	xiii

Part I Introduction: confrontation of analytical philosophy with traditional conceptions of philosophy

1 A question of method	3
2 A philosopher in search of a conception of philosophy	12
3 Ontology and semantics	21
4 Has formal semantics a fundamental question?	36
5 Consciousness and speech	51
6 The argument with the philosophy of consciousness continued	68
7 A practical conception of philosophy	81

Part II A first step: analysis of the predicative sentence

8 Preliminary reflections on method and preview of the course of the investigation	99
9 Husserl's theory of meaning	113
10 Collapse of the traditional theory of meaning	128
11 Predicates: the first step in the development of an analytical conception of the meaning of sentences. The dispute between nominalists and conceptualists	140
12 The basic principle of analytical philosophy. The dispute continued. Predicates and quasi-predicates	159
13 The meaning of an expression and the circumstances of its use. Dispute with a behaviouristic conception	172
14 The employment-rule of an assertoric sentence. Argument with Grice and Searle	186
15 Positive account of the employment-rule of assertoric sentences in terms of the truth-relation	201

16	Supplements	216
17	'And' and 'or'	236
18	General sentences. Resumption of the problem of predicates	253
19	The mode of employment of predicates. Transition to singular terms	267
20	What is it for a sign to stand for an object? The traditional account	280
21	The function of singular terms	294
22	Russell and Strawson	307
23	What is 'identification'?	321
24	Specification and identification. Specification and truth	334
25	Spatio-temporal identification and the constitution of the object-relation	349
26	Supplements	360
	I The connection between object-relation, situation-independence and the truth-capacity of assertoric speech	360
	II Reciprocal dependence of the identification of spatio-temporal objects and the identification of spatio-temporal positions	370
27	Results	386
	I The analytical concept of an object	389
	II The mode of employment of predicative sentences and the explanation of the word 'true'	396
28	The next steps	406
	Bibliography	427
	Index of names	432
	Index of subjects	434